- TOULOUSE VIOLET Sample the delicate flavour of Toulouse violets. While the flower and its colour are emblematic of the city, it also enhances desserts or can be eaten crystallised, like a sweet. Discover it at the Maison de la Violette barge moored on the Canal du Midi and in the specialist shops Violettes et Pastels and Trésors de Violette. amaisondelaviolette.com
- FÉNÉTRA Fénétra is a pastry made with shortbread dough, a compote of apricots and confit lemons, topped with a soft almond biscuit. Its origins date back to ancient times. Every year, the Romans honoured their dead in the suburb of Fénétra, to the south of the city, where there was a necropolis. In the Middle Ages, the pagan rite became a religious ceremony held during Lent. Then, in the 17th century, it took the form of a feast during which the cake was served. All the best places to try it. legateaudufenetra.com stresorsdeviolette.com
- CASSOULET Toulouse cassoulet is a hearty dish of white beans, duck and Toulouse sausage, simmered in a cassole (an earthenware dish whose name is derived from the Occitan caçolet). Where can you find this? • Fresh or tinned (Samaran, La conserverie du Lauragais, Maison Cucq...) • On the menu at restaurants such as Émile, Le Colombier, Chez Moustache and Le Bibent, as well as at Genty Magre (awarded the prize for the best cassoulet in the world in 2023). And why not try févoulet, a variation of cassoulet made with broad beans (at Point d'Ogre).
